

What is Enlightenment?

After Self-Realization when you have awakened to your true Reality and begin to live life as a Divine Soul connected with All That Is and inhabiting a body/mind, the next step is Enlightenment. Some gurus teach that Self Realization is Enlightenment, but it is not the same thing.

Self Realization is just the beginning in the journey towards Enlightenment.

Can you attain Self Realization and still have an ego-sense?

Yes, you can achieve Self Realization and still have the ego sense. Remember Self Realization is the identification with your true Reality that it is in fact your Divine Soul as we have explained in previous teachings.

Even though you identify with Pure Unbounded Divine Consciousness (That is in truth a Radiation from the Divine Body of God), the body/mind still exist and keep working exactly under the same parameters that have been programmed throughout the present embodiment. So, many times people that have Realized immediately start to play a guru type of role and give speeches and Darshan and delude themselves that they have achieved true liberation, what in fact there is just the ego catapulting them to that position of power. Imagine an ego sitting on a high chair, floating in the middle of infinite non-dual consciousness and you get the formula for disaster, as the only conclusion that the ego will come is that "I am God".

So, first Realization is a monumental achievement for a Soul in this life, but is just the beginning of true spirituality. Once you attain Self Realization you can exponentially accelerate the disassembling of the ego tendencies and strategies as you are a true free Witness of all of them now, but not truly free from them; only until they are gone from the mind.

Self Realization is Identification with your True Divine Innate Nature as Pure Consciousness that is experienced by the Divine Soul.

Enlightenment is a process of the "mind" in which you vanish the illusion of the ego-sense and then truly and freely can experience your own divine nature without any limitation. In cases of true Enlightenment like the Buddha, you don't see them preaching that they are God, because they are truly free from the ego-sense. Yet, there even in Enlightenment if you are not seeking God, He the Almighty will remain hidden for the seeker. So, a step beyond Enlightenment is God-Realization, but not in the Eastern sense that I am He, but in the true real biblical sense: God that is Eternally related to your Divine Soul.
