

Freedom

In any condition that a human being is exposed to limiting pictures of reality, as a norm even the best of us will try to surrender our will to this paragon of mortality. Mortality in this sense is limitation. It implies the self-referring point of view against the unlimited space. In other words the self or ego self is always mirroring life to itself, blocking the unlimited possibilities of a never-ending experience of freedom that God has stored for all of us.

In any case the best way to surpass these lies that the common mind has accepted about the ultimate reality, one has to become the many. Freedom is not a source of violence, hate, discord or malice. Freedom is in many ways the jewel encased in the throne of each one's heart, that when exposed to light becomes a bright beacon of joy and peace that embellishes the minds of all God's children.-

How can you reach this freedom from limitation as there are many causes that have prevented you to see the truth? Many times in history only the perverted views of mankind about the nature of reality have been the devilish dreams of many ignorant passages of immortal glory, but the one constant truth about reality is and always will be the innate freedom in which ultimately each being is created by God.

Many in their convictions have denied this birth right to uphold the most sacred truth of all that is the unlimited freedom that each soul possesses. How many times will a soul deny the possibility to stand in the immaculate throne of the perfect truth? For many have tried to reach this apex of ultimate freedom, but have failed to scale the wall of victory, due to their conformist way of speculating with life in ignorance of truth. There goes the only gift worth having in this human life that is the ability to think for one self and to be able to discern the glorified aspect of this monumental piece of existence. The only part that makes us whole as human beings and is our right to use our intellect to discover with our own eyes the truth about the Self and God. Let's not allow the blind to lead the blind in this valley of misery and discord. Where are you going to rest in these fields of uncommon mischief and despair? There is no rest for those that have let their hand to others and serve themselves as puppets on the hands of unwary masters of lies.

So, despite the need to address the shortcoming of human existence one can not be totally despair about the predicament in which humanity have place them selves in this valley of dreams. For it is true that the glorious condition of every soul is untouchable and victorious as his birth right, as his essence, as his own volatile attitude that a creation of God can Be. Truly there is hope! It is the soul of light in each one that can take up the rein of their lives and scream to the seven winds of ignorance the free reality of their most perfect condition. Beyond all dogma or creed and beyond the frontiers of the mind there is a place on unbounded space that shines in your heart as your most precious reality. Bring it forth my brothers and sisters of light and blaze thought the night! Blessed be for truth it is!

There are many ways to convey information about the nature of reality. One of those is to alert the individual to view life in a way that is different in which he is accustom. The other way is to directly investigate in the nature of the Soul. There are no shortcuts to view the true nature of things as there are so many variants that cloud the information coming from deep with in. The Soul most resource to convey his own form of communication to the individual, in a way to awaken the intellect to the true nature of existence. Saying this we can proceed to discuss some ways in which the individual can aspire to get this knowledge.

First, we said that the individual can be guided to view life in a different way as it is being presented to him. But how can you change the parameters given by your parents and society? How can a person begin to inquire in the nature of things if the puzzle is already resolved for him? Well, is a matter of knowing and knowing precedes knowledge. Knowledge is good as far the mind can operate with in certain rules and guidelines. Nonetheless, is far from the truth of Reality. Many times those that have been observing from the confines of their essence at the nature of the behaviors of mankind, have been amaze at the way humans tend to distract themselves into oblivion, negating new possibilities and avoiding new choices. What to do?..... What to do?. Well, the answer is at the tip of your fingers in the sense that you can only depend on your own understanding to be able to create a new reality. That understanding can only be gain within the context of inner knowledge. But, what if the soul is such a far reality to the individual that can't master the principles of inner search for the truth? Once again we come to the cross road of choices to the point where the individual must know what to do. If you are reading these words is because you feel you are missing something in your life. But what is it? Is it wholeness? Is it happiness? Is it love? Or maybe is it your own Self and Reality and most of all your connection to God?. Well, you come to the point of open ears, where you are ready to listen and learn for the sake of your self and not for the sake of others. I mean what is the purpose of true understanding if you have to comply with the will and knowledge that others want to impose upon you? Is there not enough God in you not to be able to discern truth by your self? Isn't Truth

Absolute? If so, why can't any one even the lowest of the lowest learn this truth?. It has no owners nor is commanded by the wicked. Is free for all as you are free your Self. But what is truth? If you expect to be told now what is truth then you are not really ready to listen. If you want to find truth your self then your time have come to mount the beast of the senses and transcend beyond the normal into the Real. It is your choice after all, that's the gift of God. Yes, there is a road to take and there is a way to look, but not by taking you by the hand it is, but by achieving true self love to decide to free your self from the chuckles that others have impose upon you. When you are no longer looking outwards for truth, but within your own being; then you are ready, the road is ahead that have been paved by many others before you. Or even your self have walk this road before and is time to remember. Be brave and star walking towards freedom my valiant brothers and sister of the light. To become is to Be. To travel is to arrive. The journey is All. The goal is God.

Now you feel you are ready. You have understood the urgency of your predicament. All your previous trails have failed you. Your religion has failed you. The common wisdom of the society has left you empty. Your parents didn't know best. Philosophy is for the soul not for the mind, and the words of many philosophers have passed over your head. You have tried to look inside the darkness of your mind to find nothing but your fears. But still you have taken a decision to go forward and find the truth. There is energy, an impulse, a wave of something deep with in you propelling you now. It could be your good karma, your good deeds that are coming to repay your kindness. It could be your guides or prophets that are lighting your inner way. It does not matter the source, but the motivation indeed. So pick up your chin and look far, far, far away into the open road. Are you ready to take the first step? So let's begin the road back to God.
