

Primordial Fear

Every time one is confronted by the unknown, there is a fear that rises from the heart. It is true that many of us think of our selves as brave people indeed, but the matter is that all of us concealed with in our hearts the fear of the unknown. For example there are those that might be brave to confront challenging situations in their life and business, or physical circumstances, but that bravery is only design as a survival mechanism to overcome situations and challenges in life. Each person is equipped to survive certain conditions in their lives as a form to overcome obstacles and scenarios that God our beloved Father presents them to balance some of their karmic conditions or past sins. Yet, there is a deeper fear that is not related to survival or to overcome odds. It is an existential fear. Fear about life at large. It is a fear that is deep in the heart that doesn't know the truth about reality and that holds us back to grow spiritually as all the true concepts and theories about reality challenge directly our on existence as we conceive it.

The Ego has their own set of rules about reality and about the way things should be. All of them are very limited to the understanding of the mind about the previous information that was received while forming this new ego in this life time. I say new ego and there are many ego bases form throughout many life times that are at the core of your being-ness, yet connected directly to this ego in your present life. If this ego is overcome, all other egos are to crumble as only the ego held in the physical incarnations can hold all other egos in place.

After clarifying that point let us continue with the investigation of this primal fear. It is in the best interest of the ego to survive as a clear example that reality is what we make of it and not what it truly is. There is this deep fear in the heart of all mankind that prevent us to look deeper into the true nature of reality not to loose our selves into the unexplored areas of existence. You see you are all here because you think that want to become more spiritual and grow as human beings in to this miracle workers that are here to assist humanity. And all is okay and good as long the true nature of your being is not revealed to your selves. But you ask your self: Is not exactly that we want to know truth and have true nature revealed as it is? Is a nice concept to behold in the mind and a noble endeavor to pursue it, but in reality your ego self do no want it. The ego is there to make sure that you don't get it. The ego will play along with you as long he feels safe and secure. But when you are getting to close to the fire of truth the ego will banish all hope from your mind, by causing fear in your heart first and then your mind. But these fear is no like the fear you may feel while watching a horror movie or while facing terrible odds that may be a menace against your life or security of someone you love. This is a subtle fear, an unspeakable fear that is beyond dogma, situation and circumstances. It is a fear that is latent in all of us and is ready all the time to turn your attention away from reality. It is at the base of all you existence as a human being. Is not lost with Self Realization and is so deep that continues to work until the last moment comes to be face and to be turn inward into the depth of our Soul and challenge to prove its reality. I'm talking about a primal energy that was created by Satan as a safe guard to keep the illusion of individuality as a human being to be broken.

This primal fear has to be confronted sooner or later to be able to unlock the door toward freedom. So now is important to recognize that fear because it will pop up its ugly head many times before the last moment in disguises and with words of duality, separation and self preservation. There are many battles before the last one so is a challenge to bear in the process of awakening. But the hour or triumph is in you as freedom is your true nature. Be on guard every time you are face by weakness in you heart to conclude you path toward awakening. Is just fear and is not your true nature. Go beyond the parameters of that fear by questioning the fear it self. Why Am I afraid? Is there a truth about this fear? What's the purpose of this fear? Am I alone in this fear or is something that prevails in everyone? Is that fear limiting my life experience? Am I afraid to continue with my meditations and prayers? Is fear real or has it bases on concepts? How long am I to live in fear? Is fear truth or is life with out limits truth? Am I afraid to loose my self? Can I be lost? If yes, who is this "I" that can be lost? Who Am I?

That's all for now as there are many permutations of this phenomena that holds as a glue on paper, holding us back and preventing us to grow beyond the parameters of the illusion that was placed in the mind by the fallen one.
