

Words

The task of every human being is to be able to express their heart with impeccability and truth. We as a whole are so used to be able to mask our true intentions in our words that have forgotten that the true communion between humanity is the transparency that we can bestow to our words

It is easy to learn to speak, but it takes mastery to learn to express in truth. Our children, God bless their souls, are the true covenant of purity in expression as they are bound by their innocence to tell what is in their hearts. It is only until the adult with their words and example taint the purity of perception and misguided the children in to the valley of darkness for whence truth is lost in the myriad of perceptions and formality that our society impose.

Most of the problem in our relationships, families and society is the lack of integrity when using the words. We mask our true meaning using double sense, lies, sexual content, and emotional poison to create havoc in the way we communicate. The word is the highest gift that God bestow upon humans as they can be use to describe the perfect manifestation of creation and even to create a reality. But when we use our words to speak lies we are but contradiction the natural perfection of things, manifesting a dream or alternate reality from which we can not escape, once is settle as reality in the mind.

We most recover the art of self expression. Lets begin with the basic understanding that if you are to speak; your words should be spoken to create heaven and not hell. Do not use your God given ability to communicate with words to harm others, to cause pain, to lie, to gossip, to judge, to be opinionated. If you do that you will be only creating hell for you and others as every word that comes out of your mind returns to you ten fold. If the intent behind words is corrupted, it will undermine the presence of the inner child and then the misguided adult will be lost in the shadow of the lies he has created.

Our true original purpose is to create Heaven on Earth. This has to be accomplished by the act of self revealing acknowledgement of the truth that lies deep within you. You are free if you speak in love. You are dead inside if you speak in hate. Words are magic and as such must be use to manifest a greater reality in our lives. It isn't enough to speak in kindness, the thoughts that precede the words must be impeccable, too. I mean with out sin, against you or others.

When use your word remember first to be kind to your self and to honor others' truth. Also remember that the words that come from others, many times come from a dark place of ignorance. So, they may be hurtful and load of emotional poison, but if you understand that come from a place of ignorance and that the individual that speak them is blind by the dream of life created by Satan's illusory web, you will learn not to take personal the words as most of the time are tainted by lies. If someone talk harsh to you do not retaliate and have compassion as those words come from a place of suffering. Instead, use the power of your love and transmit that in your words to heal the world. Remember that humanity is lost in a false dream created by the Fallen one to separate us from our Father God, and that false reality is sustain as a whole by all of us, but individually differs lightly for each one of us. Things that is true and real for one there may not be for another. Then in that context understand that the words that come from another may be true for them, but there are not absolute truths in the world and are contaminated by the lies inside.

So what is truth? The sun is real and is truth. Everybody knows the sun is real. Has many names in different languages, but is real for all. It is the same with everything in nature. What are the lies? All that is added to what that is always already truth- For example: The Sun is a God, the Sun is the center of the universe, the Sun is Beautiful, etc. Lies com from the adjectives added to things as are not universal truths for all. The same happen in your mind as is filled with thousand of personal adjectives about life, people, nature, ideas, knowledge, and about your self. So do not take words personally as are just perceptions from everybody's individual realities. Free your self from suffering and this is just one step towards freedom.

“At the beginning was the word, and the word was with God” is written in the Holy Bible and words to contemplate in regard of the power of the word that created everything in existence.

God Bless you now and always,
